“I don't think it's realistic to expect that we will see global recovery without Chinese and American cooperation and leadership”, Hillary Clinton stated when she was interviewed by a famous Chinese TV commentator during her first visit to Asia as the Secretary of State. In a recent article published by The Washington Post, Zoellick and Justin Yifu Lin, chief economist and senior vice president for the World Bank, also called for a strong G2 between US and China. “Without a strong G2, the G20 will disappoint,” They said. All these signs are pointing to a strong demand for cooperation and leadership from US and China to facilitate the global economic recovery.

The Association of Chinese-American Scientists and Engineers (ACSE) will hold its 17th annual conference on October 10, 2009 in Schaumburg, Illinois, USA. The theme of this year's conference is “US-China Cooperation and Leadership for Global Economy Recovery”. The conference will be featured with a general session in the morning and breakout sessions in the afternoon. In the general session, world-renowned economists and top rank government officials from both US and China will be our plenary speakers discussing on how the two nations can work together to lead the world economic recovery.

In the afternoon, the breakout session: “Business and Investment Opportunities in China and US”, will invite officials from US Department of Commerce and State of Illinois to introduce the policies and tax benefits for new investors. Recently, the fast development of Chinese economy has created great opportunities for people to invest and/or work in China. Another afternoon session called “Opportunities and Choices – Chinese City/Corporation Promotion” will invite several cities from China to present their special promotion policies and job openings to attract investors and candidates. Conference attendees will have an excellent opportunity to meet with the people from these Chinese cities and corporations to discuss their interests.

ACSE is one of the largest and most influential Chinese-American professional organizations in US. One of its primary objectives is to promote close collaborations in various fields between China and US in order to build a strong and healthy US-China relationship. Session Announcement

Business and Investment Opportunities in China and US

Session Chair: Dr. Donggeng Gong, email: dggeng@yahoo.com

The primary objective of this session is to enhance the bidirectional economic ties between US and China and to explore the business and investment opportunities for Chinese and American companies both in China and in US. American companies have invested heavily in China in the past. However, most recent years, the investments of Chinese companies in the USA, such as Haier's investment in North Carolina, Wanxiang's solar energy panel factory in Illinois, and Sany's recent announcement of establishing a research and manufacture center in Georgia, have also attracted great interests from both sides. This session will invite government officials from both the US Department of Commerce and the State of Illinois to introduce the policies, benefits, and services for foreign investors. It will invite the Chinese companies who invested in US to tell their successful stories. The session will also invite executives from Wall Street investment banks to introduce how to raise capital funds in US and how to list companies in US stock market. This is a real face-to-face opportunity for both Chinese and American companies who have business interest to invest in both sides.

Opportunities and Choices – Chinese City/Corporation Promotion

Session Chair: Dr. Xiao Xu, email: xiaoxu0123@yahoo.com

In 2008, Chinese GDP reached US$4.4 trillion and growth rate approached 9%. It became the 3rd largest economy in the world. The fast development of China has created tremendous opportunities for the world. In this session, we will invite several Chinese cities to introduce their culture, investment environment, special promotion policies, and job openings to attract oversea investors and potential job candidates. Attendees of this session can learn the first hand information of China from a micro-scale, and build relationship with people required to do business or work in China. It is the best opportunity for US companies and individuals to have a face-to-face conversation with their counterparts who have real interests to work with you.
